Who LOVES

Pia Miranda wears suede Capodarte wedges (right, in Jade, $195; 02 9387 4434).

THE CAPODARTE WEDGE

They annoyingly slip off shoe racks, but the wedge heel is still a must-have shoe style this season.

Look out for Brazilian label Capodarte, which has just hit the shelves at Zomp shops nationally. Take your pick from open and closed-toe styles in leather or suede, in this spring's hottest hues (Who's favourite: the metallic gold). Pia Miranda's a fan—she owns a peep-toe pair with a bow in pink suede.

Kenneth Cole "Wood You Be Mine" bag, $499 (03 9417 4958).

IN THE BAG

Join style-setters Sarah Jessica Parker, Mischa Barton and Teri Hatcher and get your hands on a Kenneth Cole bag, now available from some Myer stores. The spring-summer collection from the New York designer—he famously started out 20 years ago by selling 40,000 pairs of shoes from the back of a truck—features clutches, totes, satchels and shoulder bags. Colours range from tangerine and butternut to classic white and black.

Is your life in disarray? Try revamping your wardrobe. "When we show customers how to reuse their own things they get excited," says Soochen.

Wardrobe Wonders

Ever thought you could get the new-season look by using things in your own closet? You can: this is the concept behind a service from Margaret's Place Couture. The family team—it includes designers Soochen, 29, and Soozhee Low, 24, and their mother, couturier Margaret Low, 50—travel around Sydney to meet clients in their homes. With their motto of the four Rs—refit, refresh, re-coordinate and renew—the Low family help men and women achieve an individual look by reworking their existing closet contents. Soochen says they encourage a "reusable, rejuvenating way of dressing," with a focus on picking out and transforming "designs that transcend time" rather than faddish, cheap items. She advises not to stick to black because it's safe, but to experiment with putting different colours together and adding accessories. Margaret's Place Couture also design their own line, which includes bags made from vintage fabrics and off-cuts. Call 02 9826 0661 for an appointment; a minimum two-hour consultation costs $250.

SPOT ON

Kylie Minogue's fight with breast cancer has touched many women. One of them, Antonia Kidman, 34, is intent on raising awareness, particularly, she says, "among younger females who may think it's an illness that only affects older women." Kidman, whose mother, Janelle, has had breast cancer, is the new ambassador for the Fashion Targets Breast Cancer T-shirt campaign. "I've also had close girlfriends who've been affected," she says.

Kidman wears the Fashion Targets Breast Cancer polo shirt, $24.99 (at Target stores).
